

Section	Description
Resource Title	Fuelwood - Supply
Resource Abstract	Timber is an important resource provided by forest ecosystems that is typically processed into three different products: round wood, industrial wood or fuel wood. In a sustainable forest management cycle, timber production is limited to the net biomass increase in order to keep the forest inventories stable. Sustainably produced fuel wood, such as firewood, charcoal, chips, pellets, and sawdust management, can hence be a promising alternative for renewable energy production. The selected indicators aim to reflect potential fuel wood production, its actual usage and the current need for it at the scale of Alpine Space municipalities.

Lineage	Sustainable forest management practices limit production levels to the regrowth rate in order to keep the forest inventory stable. Hence, this indicator reflects the net annual increment of biomass in Alpine forests based on MODIS GPP satellite data.
Spatial resolution	100000
Specification	Commission Regulation (EU) No 1089/2010 of 23 November 2010 implementing Directive 2007/2/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council as regards interoperability of spatial data sets and services, date of publication: 2010-12-08.
